$495,000

Address:

111 Union Street Schenectady,
12305 New York

Bedrooms: 7

Bathrooms: 4

Built between 1862 and 1872 in the Post Bellum Presidency of General Grant; this Italianate style home was lovingly built by Giles Yates van der Bogert. Known today as the "Nicholas Van DeBogart House," it is a significant contributing structure of the Stockade Historic District of Schenectady. Listed in the National, New York State and Schenectady registers of Historic Places, it is, indeed; a significant piece of history. What was once the home and office of Schenectady's first Pediatrician, the house has now become a multi-family home that maintains much of its original character. This grand home has been family owned for most of its elegant life and the building remains very much the way it looked when it was built. Perfect blend of Historic charm and modern conveniences.
